

2006 legislative Session Overview

By Executive Director Rod Arno

AOC members and staff influenced the outcome of several bills considered this year by the Alaska Legislature. This Session Overview represents a considerable amount of work and dedication by AOC Lobbyist Jeff Logan.

After the US Supreme Court ruled that government can take private property through eminent domain to promote economic development (government has long had the power to take private property for roads, etc.), several bills were introduced within the legislature to set limits on the power of eminent domain in Alaska. The bill that rose to the top was HB 318 sponsored by Representative Lesil McGuire, along with several co-sponsors. AOC was primarily concerned about access to public land, and whether or not new language would limit government's ability to ensure that access. AOC worked with Rep. McGuire's staff and other legislators to craft language that allows government to take land for recreational access, but protects a person's property if it is their personal residence. While we support limits on the power of government, we also recognize that public land is our land, and we need to have reasonable access to it to be able to enjoy it. HB 318 was approved by the Legislature and signed by the Governor on July 5, 2006.

Two important pieces of legislation dealing with 2nd Amendment rights passed the legislature, with AOC's full support. Senator Gene Therriault and House Majority Leader John Coghill both sponsored legislation that allows homeowners to use deadly force to protect their homes. Known as the "Castle Doctrine" from times when a king could protect his castle with force, this legislation also limits certain liability that could be held against a homeowner for using force. Representative Coghill also sponsored and passed HB 400 which prohibits the state from confiscating firearms during an emergency. Rep. Coghill said that he sponsored the bill after seeing police in New Orleans confiscating weapons in the aftermath of Hurricane Katrina. Therriault and Coghill are both long time supporters of 2nd Amendment rights; AOC appreciates their efforts.

Many AOC members in Southcentral recreate at the Knik River, upstream from the Old Glenn Highway. With support from the AOC Representative Bill Stoltze and Senator Charlie Huggins sponsored legislation to create the Knik River Public Use Area after some people proposed banning ATVs and airboats from the area. The Department of Natural Resources will now initiate a public process to determine just how the area is regulated. Watch for more details here, or in AOC Email Alerts.

Rep. Stoltze introduced legislation that would allow the Mat-Su Borough to take state land from the Hatcher Pass Public Use Area. AOC opposed this legislation because the Mat-Su Borough has failed to allow reasonable access to public lands. AOC opposes giving the Borough more land until they allow public access to the public land they have now. After it became clear that the Borough had failed to gain support of Mat-Su residents in their quest to take lands out of the public use area, Rep. Stoltze withdrew his legislation, effectively killing the land transfer for another year.

Long-time AOC supporter Senator Ralph Seekins introduced SB 170 last year in an effort to combine an increase in hunting and trapping fees with several changes to Fish and Game statutes (Title 16). AOC testified on the bill last summer when the Senate Resources Committee held hearings around the state. Senator Seekins brought the bill up again this year, with support from AOC, but ran out of time. AOC's proposed changes to the fish and game statutes were addressed in the Spring 2006 newsletter. AOC will continue to work with legislators during the next session to secure needed funding from license holders for active game management.

For some time now Senator Seekins has been trying to open up state land in the Dalton Highway corridor from the Yukon River north. Current law bans off-road vehicles from operation for 5-miles on either side of the road. Seekins sponsored SB 85, which would repeal the ban and start a planning process within DNR to implement rules for ORV use in the corridor. BLM has also begun preliminary plans for developing a comprehensive off-highway vehicle plan in partnership with the state. The bill passed the Senate but fell short in the House. AOC supported SB 85 just as we support most legislation to allow access to state land as long as regulations are in place to maintain the high quality of the wildlife habitat. We hope Senator Seekins will re-introduce this legislation to allow more Alaskans to enjoy the outdoors.

Over the past couple of years legislators have introduced various versions of a bill that would create a wildlife viewing fee. Again this year there were bills in both the House and Senate. Senator Con Bunde sponsored SB 166, which would require that anyone between 16 and 60 pay a $5 fee to view Alaska's wildlife. The fee would be waived for anyone who already holds a hunting, trapping or fishing license. SB 166 died in the Senate Resources Committee. Look for some version of this idea to surface again next year.

Rep. Paul Seaton, of Homer, introduced HB 415, which would have held landowners immune from liability if they allowed access to their lands free of charge. There are cases where public recreational lands are separated by sections of private land. The private land holders don't oppose people crossing their land, but fear the potential for liability. Seaton tried to waive that liability if the land owners warn of any dangerous conditions. The bill passed the House, but never got a vote in the Senate. Chances are that a bill similar to HB 415 will be re-introduced next year.

Two management bills that didn't make it were HB 464 and HB 472. HB 464 was introduced by AOC member and outdoorsman Rep. Eric Croft and would have prohibited a hunter from taking the horns or antlers unless they salvaged at least 50% of the meat from the kill. The House Resources Committee held a couple of good hearings on this bill late in the session. Rather than supporting a reduction in the amount of meat currently required by law for salvage, which is essentially all the edible meat, AOC used the hearings to again advocate for stronger enforcement of game laws. HB 464 died in the House Judiciary Committee. HB 472 was introduced by our good friend Rep. Bill Stoltze and would have put the Susitna Drainage Salmon Management Plan, currently in policy, into statute. ADF&G opposed this legislation stating that they oppose putting regulations into statute because policy language is too specific to be appropriate for statutory language. AOC supported this bill because we believe that the present commercial fisheries interest domination of the Alaska Board of Fisheries has been detrimental to the sustainability of some salmon runs in the past. Unfortunately, the bill was referred to the House Special Committee on Fisheries where it met a quick death at the hands of legislators from commercial fishing districts.

AOC actively supported new members to the Boards of Fisheries (BOF) and Game (BOG). Governor Murkowski appointed Jeremiah Campbell to the BOF, first to fill the remainder of an unexpired term, and then for a new 3-year term. Mr. Campbell has experience in both commercial and sport fishing, and we were impressed with his knowledge of, and concern for, in-river fisheries. Mr. Campbell's votes on the board regarding salmon returns to the Copper River and upper Susitna drainage showed his concern for sustainable salmon runs. AOC worked with Kenai River Sportfishing Association in supporting Mr. Campbell's confirmation. We are especially appreciative of the efforts of Cook Inlet Sportfishing Caucus member, Bob Penney, during this exercise.

AOC also supported the confirmation of long-time AOC supporter Bonnie Williams of Fairbanks to the BOF. Bonnie has served with distinction on the Fairbanks North Star Borough Assembly. Bonnie has been an avid personal use fisher for 55 years in Alaska and has a strong personal dedication to maintaining the integrity of Alaska's wildlife regulatory development process, which considers the opinions and experience of all individuals who use and enjoy fish and game. In her testimony during confirmation hearings before the Legislature, Bonnie affirmed her commitment to ensuring healthy, strong fisheries that sustain and meet the needs of subsistence, sport/personal use, and commercial fishing in Alaska.

AOC appreciated Governor Murkowski's reappointment of Cliff Judkins of Wasilla to a second term on the Board of Game. The Governor also added two new BOG members, Dick Burley of Fairbanks and Paul Johnson of Unalakleet. They were confirmed by the legislature with AOC's full support. Mr. Burley previously served on the Board of Game a few years back and did a very admirable job as chairman, maintaining a balanced and objective approach. His service was very beneficial to AOC's membership and we now look forward to another term for Mr. Burley on the BOG.

Members of the Boards of Fisheries Game have one of the toughest jobs in the state. AOC recognizes the personal commitment every one of these Alaskans makes when they accept an appointment. We thank them all.
